Obama taps UTU's Joe Szabo to head FRA

WASHINGTON – Illinois State Legislative Director Joe Szabo, age 51, is President Obama's choice to head the Federal Railroad Administration.

His March 26 nomination requires Senate confirmation.

The railroad industry already has signed on in support of the confirmation, with the industry's chief congressional lobbyist, Ed Hamberger, saying Szabo "brings a wealth of experience in the railroad industry to this assignment."

Rail industry support of the nomination is considered crucial to Senate confirmation.

UTU International President Mike Futhey emphasized that Szabo would be "the first FRA administrator to come out of the ranks of rail labor. It is a validation that this Obama administration is a friend of organized labor."

If confirmed, Szabo would become the 13th FRA administrator since its founding as a Department of Transportation agency in 1967.

Szabo would be the first FRA administrator to come out of the ranks of rail labor.

The FRA administers and enforces federal rail safety laws and writes and enforces federal rail safety regulations.

Szabo is a fifth-generation railroader. He hired out with the Illinois Central (now part of Canadian National) in 1976, where he worked as a yard switchman, road trainman and commuter passenger conductor. In 1987, he went to Chicago Metra when IC sold its rail commuter division.

In 1984, Szabo was elected secretary/treasurer of Local 1290, Chicago, progressing to delegate and legislative representative. In 1992, he was elected vice chairperson of the Illinois State Legislative Board, and in 1996 elected state legislative director. He also has been serving as a vice president of the Illinois AFL-CIO.

He also has represented the UTU on the FRA's Rail Safety Advisory Committee, where he participated in the drafting of rail safety regulations.

In making the nomination, Obama said that as the UTU's Illinois state legislative director, "Joe has provided vision and direction to rail safety and regulatory issues and worked with business and civic leaders in the advancement of freight and passenger rail service."

Obama also noted that Szabo had served as mayor of the Village of Riverdale – a Chicago suburb – "where he managed more than 100 employees and a budget of $9 million serving 15,000 residents."

The Senate's assistant majority leader, Dick Durbin (D-Ill.), said of the Szabo nomination, "I look forward to working with him to address our nation's next round of rail innovation."

The Journal of Commerce said Szabo "has a history of pursuing FRA penalties against railroads for (safety regulation) infractions that involve rail labor."

Separately, Obama named Karen J. Rae, a transportation executive with nearly 30 years' state and regional experience, as the FRA's deputy administrator. That position does not require Senate confirmation. Rae will report to the administrator.

Rae is currently deputy commissioner for

Rail labor joins forces to aid Arkansas railroad crews

LITTLE ROCK – Railroad operating crews gained a new measure of safety March 10 after Arkansas Gov. Mike Beebe signed into law a bill bringing contract carriers who transport rail employees under strict state safety standards.

The legislation – the Safe Transportation of Railroad Employees by Contract Carriers Act – was proposed to Arkansas lawmakers almost two years ago by former Arkansas State Legislative Director Don Beavers.

The bill was shepherded through state legislature passage and signing into law by the governor by current State Director Steve Evans. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Trainmen and the Arkansas AFL-CIO also helped in support of the law's passage.

It applies to passenger contract carriers that transport railroad employees with a vehicle designed or used to transport up to eight persons, including the driver.

The new law imposes minimum driver-hiring qualifications and disqualification standards, establishes hours of service limitations for drivers, subjects drivers to drug testing, requires annual state DOT inspections of vehicles that transport rail crews, and requires DOT certification of weekly vehicle maintenance inspections and repair records.

Each vehicle is required to have fully function-

Willmar retiree provides timeless words of wisdom

People study history because history often repeats itself. The economics of today have put many in dire straits, but UTU retiree Elmond Ekblad has seen bad times before and sees hope for the future.

Ekblad

Ekblad was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and later the UTU. On Feb. 24, at Local 1177's annual Chili Feed in Willmar, Minn., Ekblad offered 60 active and retired members in attendance his words of wisdom.

"After the worst days of the Depression, we had good traffic out here by the 1930s. Traffic dropped off in 1938 and 1939, but we kept working and hoped for the best. The trains were shorter and we had workers laid off, but they came to local meetings, kept in touch, and we helped them out," said Ekblad. "Then in 1940, when England was in trouble, we saw more traffic and the men went back to work. Once the war started, we couldn't find enough good men to run the Great Northern."

"Hopefully, it won't take another war to get the men back to work," Ekblad said. "Tell them to tough it out, the trains will fill out, and they'll be back to work. They'll make back the pay. We always have and we always will."

"Elmond Ekblad was one of those workers who was a true gentleman, who you really looked up to amongst the ranks," said former UTU Minnesota State Legislative Director Willis Croonquist, who worked with Ekblad from 1955 to 1980. "He was then, and is today, an honest man who did not drink, did not swear, and was a pleasure to work with."

"But," Local 1177 Legislative Rep. Brian Hunstad said, "legend has it that if you mentioned another rail operating union's name around Ekblad, all bets were off."

"It's really remarkable and a privilege to stand with a gentleman like Elmond, and to listen to the knowledge and the history of the railroad," said Hunstad. "And when I see an old timer like that, make no mistake, as a member of the UTU, I'm proud of this union."

UTU lobbies rails on entry rates, furloughs

The UTU continues aggressively pursuing with the National Carriers' Conference Committee an equitable resolution of the entry-level rates-of-pay issue after an arbitrator ruled in January that the dispute be returned to the bargaining table.

While a daylong bargaining session in mid-March failed to produce a tentative agreement, it did add a new dimension to the talks: Reducing member layoffs and protecting the incomes and benefits of those members who are laid off.

"Notwithstanding the impact of the recession on freight loadings, we are approaching the peak employee-vacation season, and the carriers must soon comply with new hours-of-service regulations, which have the potential of creating shortages of train crews and yardmasters if the carriers continue with their layoffs," said UTU International President Mike Futhey.

"Moreover, the number of retirements, encouraged by the restored 60/30 provision of the Railroad Retirement Act, reduces the overall number of seasoned train crews and yardmasters," Futhey told the carriers.

"We sought also to impress upon the carriers that layoffs will jeopardize their ability to crew their trains with experienced train and engine service employees once the recession ends," Futhey said.

"Many recently hired employees, who are laid off, are not going to return to the railroad when the recession ends," Futhey said. "Not only will the carriers have lost the $30,000-plus cost of having trained those lost employees, but they will have to spend another $30,000-plus to train a replacement.

"Finding innovative ways of keeping employees on a partial work schedule, which continues their healthcare benefits, their Railroad Retirement credits and their seniority accumulation is just good business," Futhey said.

"And paying fully trained new hires, who are given the same responsibilities and accountability of their longer-employed peers, improves morale and lessens the likelihood that those new hires will depart the railroad."

Although some railroads have scrapped entry-level rates for newly hired and fully-trained conductors and yardmasters that are given full responsibilities, it is the industry norm to pay them less for the first five years.

A second bargaining session over these issues is scheduled for late April. Representing the UTU at the bargaining table will be Futhey; Assistant President Arty Martin; International Vice President Robert Kerley; General Chairpersons John Hancock, John Lesniewski and Jim Huston, and Alternate Vice President – East Delbert Strunk.

The carriers – BNSF Railway, CSX, Kansas City Southern, Norfolk Southern and Union Pacific – will be represented by their chief labor negotiators.

Feds sue UP over drug smuggling

BROWNSVILLE, Texas – The Department of Justice has filed lawsuits against the Union Pacific, seeking $37 million in fines for not preventing the use of railcars to smuggle more than 4,200 pounds of marijuana and 260 pounds of cocaine from Mexico through California and Texas.

UP issued a statement last month, noting that Customs and Border Protection (CBP) and not the railroad takes initial control over railcars entering the U.S. and that the border patrol is "punishing Union Pacific for drug smuggling that the company has no ability to prevent."

"Drug traffic originates on Mexican railroads that Union Pacific does not control. When Mexican trains reach the U.S. border, CBP takes control of them (and) bars Union Pacific from approaching or inspecting the trains except under CBP direction," the statement noted.

Union Pacific further contends that CBP even penalizes the rail company after the railroad finds drugs that CBP missed in their inspections.

The railroad also contends that it cannot send its personnel into Mexico to inspect the railcars for drugs, because they would not be allowed to carry arms or use drug-detecting dogs. Personnel "would have no legal authority and would be forced to turn over drugs to unreliable authorities in Mexico," Union Pacific contends.

SIR members form new general committee

UTU members working on Staten Island Rapid Transit Operating Authority – more commonly known as Staten Island Railway (SIR) – have overwhelmingly voted to form their own general committee.

Wilson

They previously were represented by Long Island Rail Road's general committee (GO 505); now they will have their own general committee, GO SIR.

The SIR is a commuter carrier in New York City's Staten Island borough and is a subsidiary of New York's Metropolitan Transit Authority, which also controls New York City's subways and the Long Island Rail Road.

The UTU represents about 190 workers in all crafts on the SIR, including locomotive engineer, conductor, track worker, building and bridge worker, track cleaner and third-rail shop worker. All are members of Local 1440, Staten Island.

SIR mechanic Thomas Wilson was elected general chairperson and delegate. James Masaro was elected vice general chairperson of track and bridge building and Darryl Jicha was elected vice general chairperson for conductors and trainmen.

President of the local is James Brownell; vice president is Dennis Jackson; Vincent LaBella serves as secretary/treasurer.

The members petitioned UTU International President Mike Futhey for authority to vote on forming an independent general committee, which was granted. The members voted overwhelmingly in favor of autonomy.

Also supportive was Long Island Rail Road General Chairperson Anthony Simon.

General committee dues will not increase, Wilson said. "All dues money will now stay in house," he said. "Now we will have a general chairperson on site to handle negotiations and any problems that may arise."

"We will now be negotiating separately with the New York Metropolitan Transit Authority, which is the largest such agency in the world and an admirable foe, but we are looking forward to the challenge," Wilson said.

"Our new team of union representatives has devoted a lot of their time to provide information to our members," LaBella said.

Amtrak workers to get back pay

Amtrak employees — including UTU represented conductors, assistant conductors and yardmasters — will receive 100 percent of their back pay on May 1, which Amtrak President Joe Boardman has designated to be "Employee Appreciation Day."

Boardman told UTU International President Mike Futhey on March 19 that he has the full support of the Amtrak board of directors to fulfill Amtrak's obligation to pay all back wages to Amtrak agreement employees.

The money will come from congressional appropriations that will be paid Amtrak in April.

The current contract covering Amtrak agreement employees provided for a wage-increase and lump sum retroactive payment package totaling $573 million.

Because Amtrak did not have the funds to pay the entire amount in a single fiscal year, Amtrak agreed to pay it out over two fiscal years.

Amtrak, so far, has funded some $428 million of the $573 million contract settlement, leaving a balance of $145 million. The remaining amount will be paid May 1.

UTU National Legislative Director James Stem has been working with Amtrak lobbyists to convince Congress to provide the necessary funding.

In a Feb. 17 letter to Congress, Boardman wrote:

"Amtrak is committed to meeting our agreements, and holds the skills of its employees and the dedication they bring to their job in high esteem. To that end, we are meeting and intend to continue to meet, on a quarterly basis, with the unions' leadership to ensure that we are communicating frankly and clearly with them. We hope that this will improve an already open and productive relationship."

In 2005, as federal railroad administrator, Boardman told Railway Age magazine, "Railroads must invest in human resources by hiring talented people and training and motivating them, as well as measuring the quality of that training and motivation to ensure incremental and continual involvement."

Boardman told Futhey: "On May 1, everyone will be paid their remaining back wages."

Rails, customers: Stop the quarrel; join with us

We are urging railroads and their customers to join with us and others in rail labor to meet jointly to resolve, amicably and quickly, a long-simmering and too-often acrimonious quarrel over how railroads are regulated by Congress and the U.S. Surface Transportation Board.

This dispute threatens the long-term viability of the railroad industry, its ability to increase capacity and improve customer service, its image as the environmentally superior transportation mode, and its immediate ability to attract and invest federal stimulus funds for further productivity enhancements that will benefit rail customers, the carriers and rail labor.

This quarrel is fracturing congressional support for railroads, and its continuation will only further erode the industry's ability to shift freight from the highways, expand commuter rail access and strengthen our national intercity rail passenger network to include high-speed rail options.

If this dispute is not resolved during this session of Congress, we face a most unpleasant result of negative conversations dominating congressional hearings and crowding out the ability and willingness of Congress to focus on legislation to benefit carriers, their customers and rail labor.

A mutually mediated solution, with rail labor at the table, will ensure that rail customers make and benefits to UTU and other rail-labor organization members.

To this end, I have asked our national legislative director, James Stem, to reach out to the various stakeholders to begin the collective dialogue.

I am personally reaching out to other rail labor chiefs and carrier CEOs.

We intend to be the catalyst to resolve this dispute quickly and equitably – and well in advance of the start of contract talks with the carriers in November.

We wish to create a workable and effective partnership among freight railroads, commuter railroads, Amtrak, rail customers and rail labor.

Said Morgan Stanley:

“Labor is a key player in the regulatory debate. Rail senior management may need to offer unions something of value in labor negotiations as a quid pro quo for support in Washington. As a result, one-man crews are unlikely in the next round of negotiations, and we expect labor to push for a greater share of profits going forward.”

Boardman envisions the future of Amtrak

A message to UTU members from Amtrak President Joe Boardman

Amtrak has always been a company whose time is coming, but now, I think, it's fair to say that it has truly arrived.

Congressional passage of the Passenger Rail Investment and Improvement Act and the recent stimulus bill give us an idea of the plans the country has for passenger rail.

Given the state of the highway and air traffic systems, and the past spikes in oil prices, it has come not a moment too soon. This is a tremen-ding the stimulus funds into some much-needed facilities improvements. I have approved plans that will bring major improvements to our maintenance facilities. We're going to extend positive train control and electrification on the Northeast Corridor, and we're going to get working on our equipment situation.

But important as this strategy is, I can't overemphasize the degree to which it depends on our workforce.

A lot of companies say that their ed their careers to this work – and you can see it when you look at our seniority rosters. A lot of men and women have dedicated their working lives to the central proposition of railroading – “the safe and timely arrival of the train.”

It is one of the last places you can see parents and their sons and daughters working side by side.

One of the most important things management can do for our employ-

I think the establishment of cross-functional safety teams was a good start. We are going to expand and improve these teams, and develop a “risk-based” and “behavior-based” process. We need to work cooperatively to use observations to determine accident risk and develop strategies to minimize risks with union-management field co-operation. I am confident that we can make some significant improve-ees is to build a safety program that works. There are a couple of key aspects to any safety program. One is technology. Technology can be as simple as basic safety gear, or as complex as positive train control. But even the best technology depends on safe and competent operators.

Our people are competent. Competence and operating intelligence are the single biggest components of safe operation. A well-run operation is naturally safe. But it's important that we build a firm partnership that involves labor, agreement employees and field management so that we can make a deliberate effort to build on the good work that has been done in recent years to improve safety.

ments, and I want to work closely with labor, the FRA, and our employees to make sure we succeed.

This is a great moment for everyone associated with the railroad industry, particularly for Amtrak. There is a renewed understanding of what we have to offer, and I think our potential is endless.

Safe operations for our employees and passengers underpin everything, and I hope that we can work closely together, not just to improve safety, but to realize a true revolution in mobility here in America.

Former President Bill Clinton also was in attendance.

Florida

State Legislative Director Andres Trujillo has testified against a proposed state constitutional amendment that would require secret ballot elections among workers to decide if they want to form a union.

Federal law currently allows such elections, which are preferred by employers, or a second method known as card check, which is similar to a petition and is favored by unions. The law now gives employers the right to choose which procedure to use.

Trujillo

A bill pending in the Democratic-controlled Congress called the Employee Free Choice Act would do away with employer choice. It would require unions to be formed without an election if a majority of workers submit check cards.

In testimony before the Senate Ethics and Elections Committee, Trujillo questioned why business interests are suddenly so interested in the secret ballot issue.

"That's because they control all the cards, and I would venture a guess that then democracy's only safe if Walmart's in charge," he said. Trujillo said businesses are worried the federal legislation "will make it a workers' choice, not Walmart's or Home Depot's."

Charlotte bus mechanics approve new pact

The members of Local 1596, Charlotte, N.C., have ratified a new three-year deal with Transit Management of Charlotte (CATS) by an overwhelming margin.

UTU represents bus mechanics on the property.

Major advances were made in job classifications and job protection, with a guarantee of no employee layoffs for 15 months following the ratification date.

UTU members also received a signing bonus, wage increases with guarantees, increases in tool allowances and company-supplied winter clothing.

Increases in the agency's portion of contributions to the employee pension plan and agency maintenance of medical benefits were also part of the deal.

I congratulate General Chairperson Alvy Hughes, Vice Local Chairperson Craig Patch, Local Committee of Adjustment Secretary James Hinton Jr. and Secretary and Treasurer Anthony Sandle for their patience and hard work throughout the negotiations.

I assisted these fine local officers with negotiations, but these local officers and other members of the committee did an outstanding job from start to finish. It was a privilege to work with such a hard working and dedicated group of members.

Despite sales tax revenue for the months of November and December being down 25 percent and 15 percent respectively, ridership and fare revenue are up on this property. CATS says year-to-date through the first seven months of fiscal 2009, ridership has increased 25.8 percent and fare revenue rose 53 percent. That's good for the job security of these hard-working members.

Diesel bus fumes said to threaten children

BEND, Ore. – Thousands of Oregon children who ride buses face serious health risks, according to the state's Department of Environmental Quality.

Of the 5,000 school buses in Oregon, the DEQ says nearly 4,000 could leak fumes inside of the bus. And the effects of these fumes can be very serious.

School districts have been aware of the exhaust problem for some time now.

"In cases where you have leaks in the bus, those fumes can swirl their way up and make their way inside, and you can get the fumes inside the bus," said Dave Voile of the Bend/La Pine Schools' transportation process.

It's this process, along with tailpipe emissions, that have the DEQ concerned. According to a new report, fumes and particles from diesel engines can be very harmful to children.

"There's been a number of studies that indicate it increases risk for cancer, for heart disease," Kevin Downing of the DEQ said. "But also a number of respiratory issues, including asthma and bronchitis, pleurisy and pneumonia."

It's for such reasons that some lawmakers are pushing House Bill 2795, which would require school districts to fix their buses by 2017 at a cost of roughly $13,000 each.

News, information for members of the UTU Alumni Association

RRB can appoint representative payee

By V.M. "Butch" Speakman Jr.
Labor member, Railroad Retirement Board

The Railroad Retirement Board (RRB) has a new nationwide toll-free telephone service to connect customers to the agency's field offices via a single telephone number (877) 772-5772.

Persons calling the toll-free number will be transferred to their local RRB field office; or, during emergency and peak periods, have their calls automatically forwarded to claims representatives in nearby field offices.

In addition, the new telephone service offers the following options for self-service through automated menus.

- Rail workers can obtain a statement showing their months of railroad service and the amount of compensation credited to them under the Railroad Retirement Act.
- Railroad unemployment or sickness benefits claimants can check the amount and date of their latest benefit payment, the claim period for which the payment was made, and review information about their last five payments. They can also confirm whether the RRB has received their latest unemployment or sickness claim, application for benefits, or supplemental doctor's statement.
- Railroad retirement annuitants can request a letter showing their current monthly annuity rate, or a duplicate tax statement.
- Medicare recipients can order a replacement Medicare card. Callers can also find the address of the RRB field office serving their area and hear special announcements and general information about the agency and its benefit programs.

The services listed above, and others, are also provided at the RRB's Web site at www.rrb.gov. For customers who choose not to conduct their business over the phone or on the Internet, the RRB's field offices remain available to answer in-person and written inquiries.

UTU retiree enjoys life aboard RV

Alumni Association member Ernest Howard and wife Patricia are living their dream.

Just months after Howard retired as a locomotive engineer from the Southern Pacific in 1994, the couple sold their house and most everything in it and moved permanently into an RV.

They have never looked back.

They spend their winters at a member-owned RV park in Texas and, when the weather turns hot and sticky, head north into Utah, Colorado, Wyoming or wherever the spirit moves them.

"I dreamed about this for years, and it's turned out great," Howard, 77, said by cell phone from Texas. (He is a member of Local 857, San Antonio.) "My cost of living went down 30 percent when I sold the house. We live in a condo on wheels."

The Howards got into RVing in 1971 when they purchased a 34-foot Monaco Dynasty diesel pusher. They are currently enjoying their fifth different RV, a 2001 40-foot Monaco diesel pusher with two slide-out rooms. The unit is completely self contained, and includes a generator, satellite television, computer and washer/dryer. They tow a Jeep, that they use for errands and offroading.

The couple's few bills are paid by credit card.

"We haven't given up anything but yardwork," he said.

What does he miss the most? "Nothing. I have been looking forward to this for years. A lot of guys at work had this dream but they never pursued it, retired and died. We stayed with it, and it's great."

"I handle the wheel but she (wife Patricia) provides the directions," Howard said.

"We have been everywhere, from Nova Scotia to San Diego, but we are home every night," he said.

"We have been married 55 years and manage to live together in this small place in harmony!" Patricia said.

All aboard for coastline cruise

Members of the UTU Alumni Association have spoken: They want to enjoy a fall cruise along the eastern coast of New England and Canada, and the UTU is going to make it happen for them!

The UTU recently aligned with Landfall American Express Travel to offer members of the Alumni Association discount travel offerings. This cruise is the first.

The cruise will be Sept. 26 to Oct. 3 aboard the Princess Cruise Lines' Caribbean Princess.

Participants will enjoy a leisurely seven-day sail from New York up the coast and back, stopping at Newport, R.I.; Boston; Bar Harbor, Maine; St. John, New Brunswick, and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Rates start at $400 per person (double occupancy) plus $295 in taxes and government fees; rates are subject to change, and restrictions apply.

For a complete itinerary and more information, call Landfall American Express Travel toll free at (800) 835-9233; e-mail travel@landfall-travel.com or log onto www.landfalltravel.com. Landfall can also arrange airfares.

This cruise is open to members of the UTU Alumni Association; other UTU members, however, are welcome to join them.

THE FINAL CALL

Following are the names of recently deceased members who maintained annual membership in the UTU Alumni Association (formerly known as the UTU for Life Program), according to reports received at UTU International Headquarters. North Dakota legislature passes bill limiting train whistles

BISMARCK, N.D. – With the support of UTU's North Dakota State Legislative Board, the legislature here has passed a bill that limits the frequency of when locomotive personnel must blow their train whistles.

Train crews in North Dakota will no longer be required to blow their whistles at every private crossing.

H.B. 1342 also requires that private crossings be marked with cross bucks and stop signs. Whistle posts will be removed.

If a land owner or someone with an interest in the area wants the whistle routinely blown at a private crossing, the law would allow for them to notify the railroad to put up whistle posts.

"What this bill does is align North Dakota law with federal regulations for public crossings. We are no longer required to blow the whistle routinely at every private crossing," UTU State Legislative Director John Risch said.

"The overall goal is to give train crews some discretion as to when to blow the whistle at private crossings."

Risch said the UTU is also in support of state senate bill S.B. 2338 that would provide funding for improved rail crossing safety with revenue designated to the state's Highway Trust Fund.

"Currently, railroads in North Dakota pay $3.2 million annually in a special fuel tax that goes into the Highway Trust Fund," Risch said. "It is totally inappropriate that railroads pay money into the fund to directly subsidize a competing industry."

"Consequently, we are working with the legislature to use some of the railroad fuel tax money for rail crossing safety, including quiet zones, improved electronic gates, and other upgrades."

To voice support of S.B. 2338, Risch said UTU members in North Dakota should call the legislative telephone message center at (888) NDLEGIS (635-3447) or (701) 328-3373 and leave a message for legislators in support of S.B. 2338.

THE UTU INTERNATIONAL STAFF: HERE TO SERVE YOU

BRENDA BARRON

Brenda Barron serves the UTU and UTUIA as secretary to General Counsel Clint Miller and Associate General Counsel Robert McCarty. She started in 1980 in the union's Updating Department, then worked a number of years in the Accounting Department. She also served as secretary to now-retired Vice President Pete Patsouras. She has been in the Legal Department since 1995. "I type legal briefs and correspondence, do filing and keep the legal books current," she said. "I also handle a lot of phone calls. There are a lot of deadlines and the work often is fast paced so the days go quickly. It's certainly not boring."

PATRICIA SCHMIDT

Patricia Schmidt is the assistant director of UTUIA's Claims Department. She started in 1974 as a clerk in the Policyholders Service Department. Since then she has worked her way up through various assignments in the UTUIA, information technology and accounting departments. "My department handles accident and health, premium waiver, life and endowment claims," she said. "In addition, I address and solve any questions that may arise in the department. It is gratifying to be able to help our members and their families during times of need."

LISA POWERS

Lisa Powers is the UTUIA's associate underwriter. She started in early 2007 after spending 13 years with Central Reserve Life Insurance. "I review applications along with required medical information, such as paramedical exams and medical records, against industry-standard guidelines, to determine the eligibility of insurance for those members applying for our disability income replacement insurance and/or life insurance products," she said. "I enjoy working at UTUIA and facing the challenges and rewards that each day can bring."

Amtrak announces capital improvements

WASHINGTON – Amtrak has released a list of capital projects to be funded by $1.3 billion from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA).

The highlights of the list include railcar and locomotive restoration to augment the current fleet; projects to bring Amtrak stations into compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA); passenger and maintenance facility improvements, and track, bridge and signal replacements and upgrades.

The investment package is broken down into two separate accounts: one for railroad and station capital projects funded at $845 million and one for security and life safety projects, funded at $450 million.

For a detailed list of projects, go to www.Amtrak.com and click on "Inside Amtrak," then "Other Reports."

Following are examples – not a comprehensive list – of some of the projects to be performed with ARRA funding.

Railcars and locomotives

Amtrak shops in Beech Grove, Ind., will rebuild 20 out-of-service Superliner and one Viewliner railcar ($19.3 million) and 15 locomotives ($13 million) and the Amtrak shops in Bear, Del., will rebuild 60 out-of-service Amfleet railcars ($58.5 million). This equipment can be used throughout the Amtrak system.

ADA compliance

More than 200 stations in 40 states will receive needed upgrades to improve accessibility for disabled persons ($40 million).

Other station projects

Replacement of the existing Auto Train passenger station in Sanford, Fla., ($10 million) will be carried out, and the Wilmington, Del., station will receive more than $20 million for renovation.

Bridges, tracks, structures

This includes major investments such as the Niantic River Bridge replacement in Connecticut ($100 million), the renewal of 10 other bridges in Delaware, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New York ($65 million), construction of a maintenance facility in Los Angeles ($25 million) and Seattle ($35 million), improvements to the Chicago facilities ($47.5 million) and the Miami (Hialeah) maintenance facility ($25 million).

Security and safety improvements

The $450 million Security and Safety fund will be used for investments in security measures that reduce infrastructure vulnerabilities and enhance incident management at Amtrak facilities nationwide, including stations, bridges, tunnels, maintenance facilities and other buildings.

Enhancements to safety installations include projects such as fire detection and suppression systems and improved emergency egress from buildings and tunnels. Projects in this category also involve expansion of Positive Train Control safety systems in the Northeast Corridor ($50 million) and Michigan ($10 million).

ing heat and air conditioning, secure locations for baggage, and fully operational seat belts.

The law also requires that each van operator maintain liability insurance of at least $5 million for each motor vehicle used to transport rail employees.

Beavers began the legislative effort after receiving a steady stream of complaints from UTU members that drivers who transported them to and from rail terminals appeared fatigued at the wheel and that the vehicles had numerous safety defects.

"We approached rail management and the contract carriers who transport crews, seeking their cooperation in solving these problems, but were stonewalled," Evans said.

"So we invited the BLET to take part in a safety audit of these operations, allowing us jointly to provide evidence of safety problems to Arkansas lawmakers, who introduced the legislation mandating safety improvements," Evans said.

Recognizing that contract transportation of rail crews is covered by federal safety law when the vans operate in interstate service, the legislation makes clear that if federal safety law administered by the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration does not apply, then the Arkansas law will apply to all intrastate operations.

"This removed any grey area that might have allowed van operators to avoid safety regulation within Arkansas," Evans said.

Former One Bus GC Frierson dies

Former One Bus General Chairperson Joe Frierson passed away March 5. He was 56.

Frierson, of Local 710 in Newark, N.J., served as general chairperson from 1999 to 2003. He joined the UTU in 1990.

"Joe was a devoted member and officer and he will be missed by his fellow members," UTU Bus Vice President Vic Baffoni said.

policy and planning of the New York State DOT, a post she has held since June 2007, with responsibility for rail, aviation, and public transportation.

Her experience includes serving as deputy secretary for local and area transportation at PennDOT, director of the Virginia Department of Rail and Public Transportation, and general manager for the Austin, Texas, Metropolitan Transportation Authority.

Earlier in her career, Rae was a ticket sales and tour representative for Adirondack Trailways, whose bus operators and mechanics are represented by the UTU.

In 2006, the Richmond Times-Dispatch newspaper said of Rae: "She is also known for taking a tough stand with CSX Corp., the Florida-based railroad that owns the tracks that run through the heart of Virginia. Rae said she was 'disappointed and frustrated' with CSX's foot-dragging in starting a $65.7 million upgrade funded by the state. Her outspokenness led to a meeting between CSX's top executives, who apologized to then-Gov. Mark Warner."

To follow the confirmation process, log on regularly to www.utu.org and sign up for UTU e-mail alerts on the Web home page.

Hazmat training at regional meeting

Rail workers interested in learning about how to respond to hazardous-materials incidents are encouraged to attend a special seminar prior to the San Francisco regional meeting.

Certified trainers from the rail workers' hazmat training program, all members of the UTU, will conduct a full-day training session on hazmat first response Sunday, July 5, at the Westin St. Francis Hotel, the host hotel for the meeting.

Training begins at 8:30 a.m. and covers duties of first responders, hazmat regulations, communications, chemical properties, hazard classifications, resources for health and safety activists, and railroad security.

Because space is limited, participants must commit to attend the all-day session.

A $25 registration fee is required, which will help cover the cost of program materials.

Checks should be made payable to the "UTU." Please keep payments for this seminar separate from regional meeting registration fees. On-site registration will be held if there is space available.

To enroll, send your name, local number, e-mail address and telephone number, along with payment, to UTU Hazmat Program, 14600 Detroit Ave., Cleveland, OH 44107.

Meet your UTU Designated Legal Counsel

There is no more dangerous work environment than on the railroads, where injuries too often are severe. The Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) makes railroads accountable for unsafe working conditions. Railroads retain skilled attorneys to protect their interests. You also have access to skilled and experienced attorneys who understand the railroad industry, its safety hazards, and every aspect of the FELA. They are the UTU Designated Legal Counsel, chosen for their special knowledge and experience. Their job is to represent you. This continuing column introduces you to all of the UTU Designated Legal Counsel. For a complete listing, go to the UTU home page at www.utu.org and click on the blue tile, "Designated Legal Counsel."

If you are injured on the job, the Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) and your UTU designated legal counsel are the best friends you and your family have. These successful trial lawyers are specialists in handling FELA claims, and are fully experienced in dealing with railroad claim agents and railroad lawyers.

When an employee is injured, the railroad puts a machine in motion to protect itself. Immediately, the claims agent and managers conduct re-enactments, interview witnesses, take pictures, preserve evidence, do surveillance of injured employees and much more. They are trained and skilled to protect the railroad. The injured employee MUST ask: Who, with training and skill, is protecting me?

UTU's Delbert Strunk scores for new hires

Some of UTU's newest members are suffering during this economic recession; many haven't worked enough days to qualify for Railroad Unemployment Insurance benefits.

Often having left non-railroad employment and paid out of their own pockets for training for their first railroad job – only to be furloughed – many of these new hires have had the economic winds and optimism knocked completely out of them.

On Norfolk Southern, General Chairperson Delbert Strunk (GO 687) searched for a means of salvaging the careers of eager new hires. Strunk knew he couldn't get them back to work until the economy improves, but he could make their return to work easier, and ensure they built seniority while on furlough.

Strunk, who also is first alternate International vice president – East, convinced NS to suspend application of a contract clause that required newly hired, and then furloughed, employees to be terminated permanently following 365 days of consecutive furlough.

Strunk and NS amended, for Strunk's general committee of adjustment, Article XII of the 1985 UTU National Railroad Agreement (still in force). The amendment suspends operation of Article XII until Oct. 31, 2010.

Now – and through Oct. 31, 2010 – new hires with fewer than three years of service who have been furloughed, or are furloughed, by NS on Strunk's general committee, will not be permanently terminated by NS if their furlough extends for 365 consecutive days.

Thus, even if their furlough extends for 365 consecutive days, they will be called back to work in order of seniority without having to go through the rehire process – and they will accrue seniority for that time on furlough.

Some 600 new hires on Strunk's general committee will benefit.

Strunk's agreement was the first on NS, and he is working with other UTU general chairpersons to help them gain similar agreements.

"Our newest members should know that the UTU is totally committed to protecting every member's rights, whether a 30-year veteran or a new hire," Strunk said. "This is a small step to ensure a prosperous and fulfilling career on Norfolk Southern for new employees."

UTU International President Mike Futhey credited general committee autonomy – guaranteed under the UTU constitution – for giving general chairpersons significant leeway to find creative ways to help members.

"The best ideas often are born at the general committee and local level, and then are shared with others," Futhey said. "We all benefit from this creativity and the autonomy of general committees."
